
Afterword

Within the next year, the Delta Modeling Section will have an accessible homepage on the World Wide Web. This homepage will include the following information:

1. A general description of the type of work accomplished in the Delta Modeling Section.
2. Descriptions of models used by the Section, including a general overview of what each model does, a description of the formulation, publicly available source code, input, and sample output.
3. Documents written by the Section; these include past annual reports to the State Water Resources Control Board, American Society of Civil Engineers papers, and Department of Water Resources Reports.
4. Information on the type of data that is available within the Delta. Currently the data is released within the Department and we do not have permission to release it to the public.
